City courts GM with tax break

By Christine Rizk
ANP Staff Writer

The city council Monday night approved a 12-year tax abatement for General Motors of Canada paving the way for the auto company to begin development of a $230 million facility in Romulus.

The agreement between the city and GM will also allow that company to retain as many as half the workforce at the Detroit Diesel Allison Plant, the site for the development.

"The sooner you can start, the better," Mary Ann Banks told GM representatives present during the public hearing and later during the regular council meeting where the venture was unanimously approved.

Banks and other members of the council extended their welcome despite the fact that GM officials declined last night to verify whether Romulus would indeed be the site of a new line of high-tech cars and trucks.

"I am encouraged by the commitment you've made to our community," Councilman Noah Bergeron said to GM officials. "We have a good neighbor in General Motors."

The decision by the council to approve the requested $25.6 million tax abatement on new personal property over the next 12 years means additional revenue to the city of $528,523 beginning as early as 1988.

Currently, the city receives $479,715 per year from Detroit Diesel Allison operations.

"We should be announcing a decision shortly," Dee Allen, director of media relations for CPC said. "We will go back and discuss the council's decision to determine whether we will locate here."

Allen declined to comment further except to indicate that other sites that "we've never identified publicly" are under consideration as well.

Bob Renka, from GM Diesel Allison, told the city council that the new tax abatement on personal property would be applied to the portion of the diesel plant currently in Action considered on massage parlor

By Christine Rizk
ANP Staff Writer

Following the introduction of a legal opinion by city attorneys on the legitimacy of The Rest Stop, a local massage parlor, Councilman Barry Baumann Monday night proposed taking action against the establishment, including possible revocation of the owner's license.

"People seem to be very dissatisfied by our inaction," Baumann told the council, referring to the month-long delay in resolving the matter.

A citizen's group presented the council with a petition bearing more than 300 signatures on Dec. 9.

The petition called for the removal of The Rest Stop, located at 6971 Merriman Road in Romulus, saying that services offered there were not as originally represented.

According to council records, representatives from The Rest Stop indicated that the then-proposed facility would be a health spa, equipped with hot tubs, steam rooms, exercise room and lounge area.

Instead, citizens claimed, owner Kurt Schik constructed a massage parlor.

In an effort to determine the nature of the business, an undercover police officer was sent to The Rest Stop shortly after the petitions were presented to the council.

As a result of the officer's report, indicating that several "services" were offered for a fee, the attorneys agreed that the establishment was in violation of certain sections of the Romulus criminal code.

Those codes refer to any person in a public place who, "by word, gesture, or any other means" suggests engaging in "lewd" or "immoral" acts or agrees to "sexual conduct" in return for a fee.

The officer also reported that a "tip" was expected at the conclusion of the visit since the masseuse's sole income was derived from "tips and negotiations for ...services."

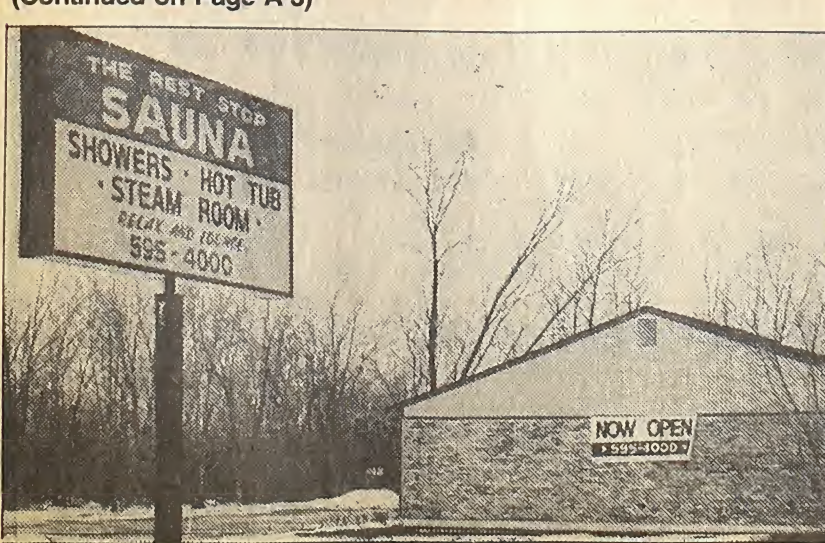

"We can take some kind of action against the owner when the permit was secured through fraud," Baumann said.

According to city attorneys Ron Mack and Barry Seifman, it is "a matter of interpretation under which district type" massage parlors might fall since such establishments are not "specifically" addressed in the zoning ordinance.

They did, however, indicate that the city council could take action against the owner for false representation, something the council said they would consider.

"I'm certainly in favor of taking whatever action we can," said Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks. "I think we should have as much recourse as any citizen who is conned by a door-to-door salesman."

Banks said that the council, in conjunction with the mayor's

Bite worse than bark? Owners face judge for beagle's death

By Christine Rizk
ANP Staff Writer

Two pit bulls relinquished by their owners last week after the dogs allegedly killed another dog are confined to the city pound pending a criminal court hearing January 21.

The dogs will remain under surveillance by ordinance department workers until a judge can determine whether the dogs, implicated in several other dog attacks, will be destroyed or released into the custody of Margaret and Bennett Meyer, the owners, according to Steve Banko, the ordinance director.

"We are currently holding the dogs until the 21st," Banko said. "We probably could do something with them but we will wait until the trial. Right now, we're really just happy to have the dogs in custody."

In a hearing before 34th District Court Magistrate Chuck Walls Jan. 7, the Meyers received two tickets—one for failing to license their dogs and one for allowing them to run at large, after pleading guilty, Banko said.

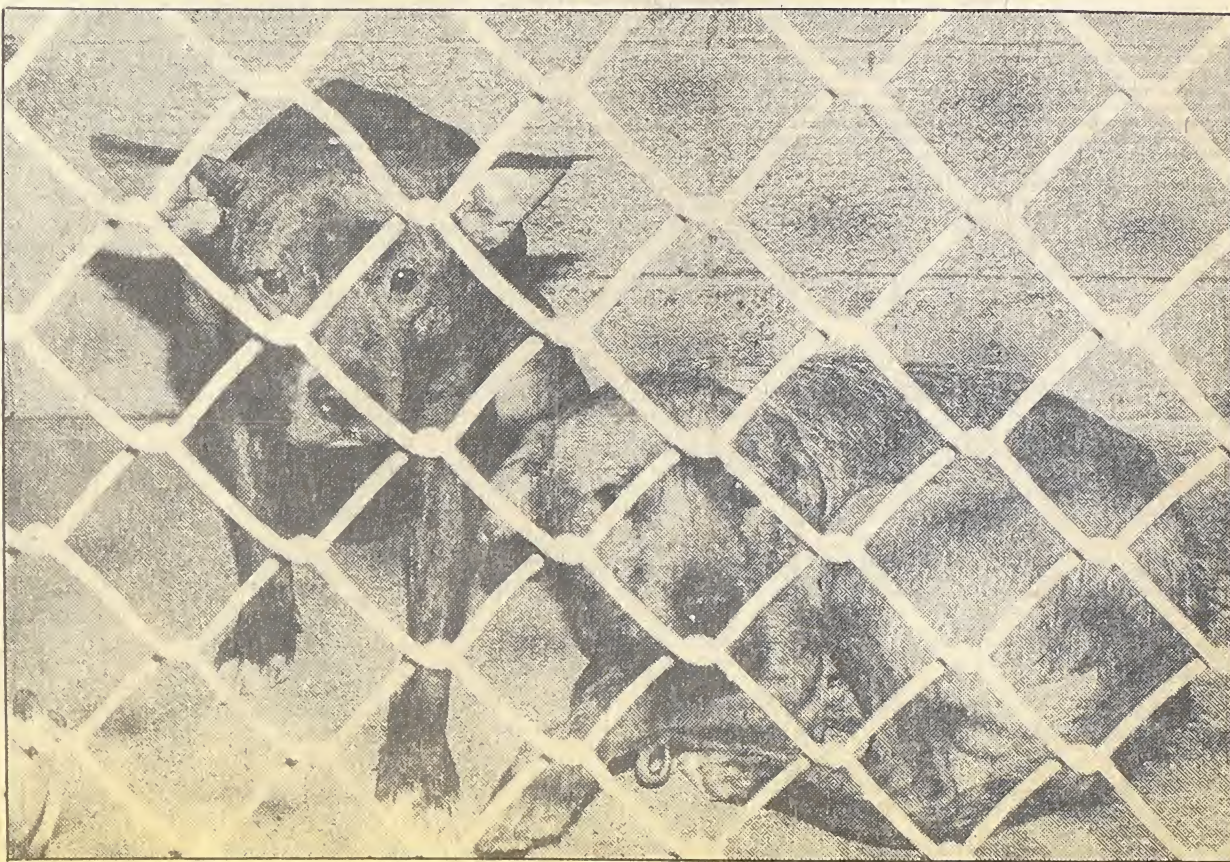

The charges were brought against the owners after the two pit bulls, a mother and her pup, were allegedly allowed to run free in the neighborhood of Sterling Street in Romulus.

The owner, Margaret Hance, and the city, contend that the pit bulls attacked and killed the terrier/beagle while he was chained to a leash in Hance's backyard in December.

Jo Ann Miller, the daughter of Margaret Hance, said the dog received puncture wounds to the throat, had portions of his skull exposed and toes missing.

There were no witnesses to the actual attack, she said.

A $16 fee was paid to the court by the Meyers Jan. 8. They face misdemeanor charges of harboring dangerous dogs Jan. 21 based upon Section 7.04 c of the city ordinance prohibiting dog owners from "...harboring) a dog within the city which is known to kill, worry or injure livestock...chases, snaps, attacks or barks at pedestrians on public streets or ...conducts itself in such a manner as to interfere with reasonable use and enjoyment of property owned by others."

"These dogs were running around the neighborhood loose," Miller said. "The owners had to know something was wrong when the dogs came home all bloody and scratched from fighting."

Miller said the attack that led to her mother's dog's death was not the first for the animal.

In November, she said, the same dogs allegedly attacked and maimed the dog, resulting in the need for 18 stitches and a 3-day veterinary stay.

"The dog was chained up and the other dogs just attacked him," Miller explained. "It was a nice day outside and we wanted him to stay outside for awhile. The next thing you know, the dog is lying dead outside."

Miller said the most recent episode, as with the other incident, has upset her mother.

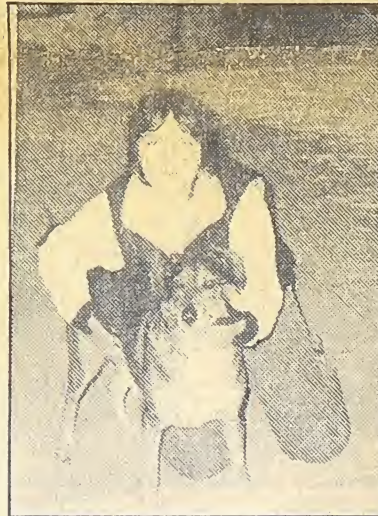

"We loved that dog—we were really tore up about it."

She and her mother, Miller said, are hoping to see the dogs "destroyed."

Banko said that it will be a matter of proving whether the dogs are "dangerous" and whether they were involved in the attacks.

"These dogs allegedly attacked or maimed or killed other animals," he said. "We know of at least six or eight incidents that the dogs are involved in."

Banko said the ordinance department would have confiscated the dogs before but workers had never witnessed the dogs running free.

He said after the latest incident, he went over to the Meyer's residence and informed them that the "dogs should be turned over to the city" until after the court date.

Energy testing set for Jan. 17

By Christine Rizk
ANP Staff Writer

In an effort to help residents reduce energy consumption in their homes, the Romulus Energy Alliance League (R.E.A.L.) will offer nighttime scanning beginning Friday, Jan. 17.

Nighttime scanning, a method of detecting home heating loss through the use of a camera that takes infrared (heat sensitive) pictures, is effective in detailing, via a photograph, the areas of heat loss in a home.

Homes are scanned at night to enable the infrared images, called thermograms, to be taken.

Demonstrated here is the effect of infra-red on local residences. The lighter areas of the photo indicate where heat is escaping from the homes.

Volunteers sought

By Christine Rizk
ANP Staff Writer

Residents are being sought as volunteers for the Romulus Energy Program recently initiated by the city.

The State Energy Administration, in cooperation with the Romulus Energy Alliance League (R.E.A.L.) and the city, will offer free thermogram interpretation training for interested participants.

Thermograms, a photograph taken by infrared light detailing areas of heat loss within a home, will be offered beginning Jan. 17 for residences.

Training is easy and non-technical, according to John Said, and will allow volunteers to gain the necessary knowledge to explain thermograms to residents.

Volunteers, through training, will be able to suggest methods of correcting home heat loss.

Training sessions are scheduled for March 11 and March 18 in the community meeting room at city hall.

Interested persons should contact John Said at 941-0666, ext. 274.

Thermograms will then be examined by trained personnel who can, in turn, suggest cost-efficient methods of controlling heat loss, according to John Said, a city loan and grant specialist coordinating the program.

Open house meetings at city hall in March and April will enable homeowners to view the thermograms.

The city, in conjunction with the state and R.E.A.L., has contracted with the Daedalus Company of Ann Arbor to do neighborhood scanning.

The company has specially-equipped vans that have cameras installed within to travel along streets to do the scanning.

"It's important that the residents know we're doing this so they are not suspicious of these vans in their neighborhoods," according to Said.

The vans will travel at a low rate of speed along the streets beginning Jan. 17 and continue scanning for "up to two weeks."

According to Said, every Romulus home except for those situated in unpopulated areas will be scanned, free of charge.

"At this time, the program does not include small businesses, either," Said commented, "but we are working with them in an effort to offer energy audits of their buildings sometime in the near future."

The vans will display decals signifying the Daedalus name, he said. Streets will be scanned one time unless technical problems occur.

Residents interested in thermogram scanning can contact John Said at 941-0666, ext. 274.

Financing options for weatherizing a home through a city deferred loan program can be discussed at that time. In addition, according to Said, utility companies offer interest-free loans for improvements.

An introductory meeting on energy reduction will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 15 at which time the program will be further highlighted.

Plymouth plans icy festival

By DAVID CONLEY
ANP Staff Writer

Doomo arigato!

Those words, meaning "thank you very much" in Japanese, should be on the lips of more than 300,000 people by next weekend, as they brave the wintry trek to Plymouth for the Fourth Annual Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

Bigger and better than ever, 264 tons of ice have been delivered to the streets of downtown Plymouth for carving by skilled carvers and culinary experts. The result? More than 400 ice sculptures in all shapes and sizes, lit by sunshine during the day and by colored spotlights at night.

The event, sponsored by local businesses and the Miesel/Sysco Co., runs Jan. 9-19 and has just been named one of the top 100 events in all of North America by the American Bus Association for the second year in a row.

And what has all this to do with brushing up on your Japanese?

It means visitors to Plymouth will have a chance to see Japanese chefs who inspired the event four years ago—chefs renowned as "the best ice sculptors in the world," according to R. Scott Lorenz.

Lorenz, co-chairman of the event and general manager of the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth, explained that six professional chefs from Sapporo, Japan have been invited to carve major sculptures.

For Lorenz, the arrival of the Japanese—two of whom are past world champions in ice sculpture—signalled that the event has come full circle (an arctic circle?) to its origins.

"The event started four years ago," Lorenz said. "I saw a '60 Minutes' segment from Sapporo, where they were showing ice sculptures. I, my father, and Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper started the first event. We did it in about 45 days."

Nowadays the Spectacular is a year-round proposition.

Dog owners on trial

"She (Margaret) gave them up but later came back and asked for the female back," Banko said. "We convinced her that that would not be a good idea because she might be liable for more damage if the dog attacked an animal.

"We really didn't want to take a chance of the possibility of other animal attacks or even attacks on people," he said.

The Meyers were unavailable for comment.

Violet Meyer, mother to Bennett, said Monday that her son's dogs were "good dogs". "I just don't know what's going on," she said. "I think the

the process of phasing out operations.

He added that the company would transfer the tax abated real estate for the old 8.2 liter engine production to CPC operations.

Production, once the move is made to Romulus, would begin in August 1987, Renka said. The company would be operating at full volume by January 1988.

Council members expressed concern for the success of the new development and asked whether the new V-6 engine would be as popular as the diesel engine, which GM officials readily admitted was a disappointment.

"Can you say at least four or five years?" questioned Councilman William Wadsworth.

"We have to prove that we can be a world-class competitor," Renka responded. "After we do that, we can put more into the site. But I'd hate to say anything unequivocally at this point because we saw what happened to diesels."

Renka added that once the facility proved successful, additional product would be "put into the facility" to bring production up to its full potential.

whole thing has been exaggerated."

Meyer said her son and daughter-in-law were "upset" by the incident. "That's why they gave them to the pound but I think (the city) has been really rough on (her son and his wife)," she said.

Meyer added that the dogs, whose breed is known for its aggressive nature, were "not trained for fighting".

"The dogs would just play around the yard," she insisted.

Twenty-year professional dog trainer Dan Morris said pit bulls are not "naturally more aggressive" than any other dog.

"What it boils down to is how the owners train them," he explained. "Dogs become aggressive for several reasons: left alone they become isolated and can only associate with the immediate family. A pit bull has no more instinct to chase and dominate than any other dog."

Morris said it is the fault of the owner if the dog becomes incorrigible and too aggressive.

"A dog should live within the home," he explained. "He has to have exposure with people. A dog is like a child-you have to place him within society in order to allow him to function well. You have to blame the people because they are usually the cause of any problems created by the dog." Morris said if the Meyers' dogs are found to be dangerous by the court, there is a "50-50 chance" that they can be retrained.

"Training leads to discipline," he said. "In much the same way a person knowledgeable in karate will walk away from a confrontation, so too will a dog because he knows his potential."

Morris added that pit bulls retain a reputation for fierceness because of their use in fighting as a means of gambling in the South.

"But that doesn't mean a dog properly trained by its owner cannot be more of a threat than any other dog," he said.

Now in its fourth year, the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular is expected to attract more than 300,000 sightseers by the time it ends Jan. 19. The event features hundreds of tons of ice, carved into a variety of beautiful figures, like this eagle. Story on Page A-2.

Armed robbery ring suspect in pair of eatery heists

By Christine Rizk
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus police are investigating several armed robberies in the area that appear to have been committed by the same suspects since the first of the year.

In one instance, police reported an armed robbery Jan. 7 at the Wheat and Rye, located at 7000 Merriman Road.

The Ypsilanti victim, robbed of his wallet and pocket cash at gun point, told police that four black males approached him while he was in the parking lot of the Wheat and Rye and demanded his cash.

Three suspects then fled southwest behind the eatery while a fourth suspect entered a 1974-75 maroon-colored Monte Carlo or Grand Prix parked on the east end of the building and sped off down Merriman Road.

In a similar fashion, another victim was approached in the parking lot of Big Boy, 8210 Merriman Road at approximately 1:07 p.m. Jan. 1.

Three black males, one of whom was allegedly armed with a screwdriver, allegedly robbed the Big Rapids resident of his money.

The three suspects then drove off in a light blue Ford Omni or Escort vehicle.

According to police, a license plate number obtained by the victim indicated that the plate had been reported stolen from Inkster.

In the third incident, on Jan. 6, a Birmingham victim was followed in his vehicle by four black males while traveling southbound on Wayne Road.

He reported to police that at approximately 9:15 p.m. he noticed a full-size dark vehicle following "extremely" close.

He then turned onto Ecorse Road and discovered the car was still trailing behind him.

The suspects' car lights began flashing and a horn was sounded suggesting to the victim that he knew the occupants of the car.

He then pulled over to the side of the road while the vehicle passed him.

According to reports, the suspects exited their vehicle brandishing a metal pipe.

The victim, realizing he was in danger, attempted to drive away but instead collided with the suspect's vehicle. He was able, however, to escape uninjured.

No money was taken in that incident.

office, will attempt to "close down" the facility after they meet to discuss the legal options.

"I know I'd like to do something as soon as possible," she said.

Councilman Noah Bergeron proposed devising a licensing ordinance aimed at curtailing massage parlor activities.

"We can make sure we have licensing ordinances for those people who work in these places. We can make it so dog-gone tough that nobody can come in. They shall either be licensed or we can go in and close them down."

The city criminal code, as well as all other ordinances, mandates a penalty of up to $500 and/or not more than 90 days in jail for violations.

REWARD

REWARD - for anyone with knowledge or information about the shooting of Curt Cullen, December 26, 1985, 11:00 p.m. at the Pine Creek Country Club. Call Bernie Price at 572-9022.

It's icy cold

Ice sculptures, long a tradition in Japan, have become popular among America's most talented chefs as a way to "dress up" food at banquets and buffets. When they're made out of three tons of ice they become a real attraction, with or without food.

"We're very busy right now, during the weekdays," Lorenz said. "But with the weekends, we'll really be crowded."

Fortunately, Lorenz and Graper get a lot of help from their friends - volunteers and businesses who coordinate the dances, lunches and contests that make all of Plymouth a city on a winter holiday.

People interested in finding out more about the activities should call the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce at 453-1540, or the Mayflower Hotel at 453-1620.

If some fine morning this week you stroll through the streets of Plymouth, admiring the sun as it twinkles through the crystalline scales of a huge ice dragon, say good morning to the people you meet, Japanese style: "Ohaayo," pronounced just like the state next door.

Art and ice

The Ice Sculpture Spectacular brings together both the exotic and local facets of winter. Master ice sculptor Akira Ogura (upper left) of Sapporo, Japan works on a horse that leads a shimmering chariot of ice; and standing against the background of a Plymouth street, a snow goose spreads its wings while resting in an icy nest.

A vote for the future

Next Monday, voters in Wayne, Westland and some portions of Inkster, Romulus and Canton Township will have the opportunity to make a very real difference in the futures of their communities.

Each and every election is special, and each one can be said to have a direct and definite impact of the future of the community. But a school election such as this one is, perhaps, of even greater importance than some.

Usually ignored, and usually the election with the fewest votes cast, a school millage question is often treated like a stepchild in the minds of many voters and homeowners in the city. Many do not vote, and many do not consider the impact of a 'no' vote beyond the consideration of the dollars it might cost them personally.

There obviously is much, much more at stake. In this election, the Wayne-Westland Schools will ask voters to renew, for a period of 10 years, the 32-mill levy which is presently used to finance the school district.

In addition, voters will be asked to approve a 2-mill increase for three years in an effort to finance specific projects within the district. Among those are the roof-repair and painting of several schools, band uniforms, new classroom supplies and equipment, general building upgrading and the instituting of a new building maintenance policy. This proposal, if approved by a majority of the voters, will cost the average homeowner approximately $44 each year per household.

The Wayne-Westland School District was once considered one of the best places to educate a child in the state, and it still may be. But the reputation of Westland has been marred over the past few years . . . and unfortunately, so has the reputation of the school district that educates its students.

That appears to be about to change – and such a change can only be beneficial to the reputation of the schools who have long fought a battle to remain at the top of the educational measuring sticks applied to districts. But no matter how good the system, the teachers or the administration are, it is difficult for children to learn when the ceiling in the classroom is leaking or the furnace is not properly working. Perhaps a fresh coat of paint may seem merely cosmetic to some, but educators and children alike can attest to the effect a clean, bright, warm classroom has on the ability to concentrate and learn.

While ceilings aren't yet leaking, and children and teachers alike have not yet felt the effects of the much-needed repairs in the district, administrators are looking toward the future and understand the need to make these adjustments and repairs now. Band uniforms may not seem a top priority – but the feeling of pride in a district is somehow related to the school bands that march in civic parades and the high-stepping, fancy-uniformed musicians seem to be a symbol of the school, the district and the state of the economy in the community.

There is a great deal of pride expressed by the residents of Westland, Wayne, Inkster, Romulus and Canton – not without basis. That pride should be expressed in the schools, too. For the schools, as we all know, are the harbingers of the future as they educate the most precious commodity in the world today – our children.

Enablers, helpers and responsibility

Let's face it friends, life is either full of problems or opportunities, depending on your outlook. I usually prefer to think of the "sticky wickets" of life as "situations" and we all face them.

We lose our car keys, overeat until we can't fit into our clothes, forget or neglect to do our homework (this one is not confined strictly to students), dent our auto, don't get out of bed on time and are late . . . and so it goes.

When we find ourselves in a "situation," then we must work to dig our way out, unless we have someone who solves our problems for us. Such people are called, by many sources who deal with these types of problems, "enablers."

There are those who seem to have at least twice as many "situations" as everyone else, and yet they are protected from cleaning up their acts because they don't have to. They are sheltered and protected from the realities of life by others. When they find themselves in a predicament, often of their own creation, an enabler plays mommy or daddy and tells them it's okay . . . it's not your fault . . . you are the victim, and then solves the problem or tells them how to extricate themselves from the situation of their own making.

This is most apt to occur within the family structure and most particularly with our children. For if we find fault with someone that sprang from our seed, then we feel a sense of failure within ourselves. Some of us are obviously better equipped to handle the sort of self-evaluation that can come from seeing our children for what they really are, "warts" and all.

As I see it, the enablers of the world are a great inducement to the continuance of certain situations, with little hope of correction. Something must change before deviate behavior that precipitates problem situations can change.

Beyond the family, examples might include employees who are consistently and regularly late for work, a supervisor's bad attitude or lack of job performance in the workplace. The employer looks the other way or remains tolerant of such behavior and therefore the conduct will continue. Only a change of behavior on the part of the enabler will cause the individual's behavior to change.

Often, however, there is a sincere effort being made to make appropriate change. What must occur then is an understanding of the reality of the problem, whether it is an addiction to alcohol, an inability to attend to school work or a lack of performance in business. If with the help of another, we can look in the mirror and be honest about what is being dealt with, then all things are possible.

Without helpers, whether they are family members, friends or business associates most would not survive some of life's true hardships. When illness, financial collapse or natural calamities such as fire, flood or tornado strike, our very survival is dependent on a helping hand.

Day to day, we survive by a kind word, a listening ear, a favor from a friend or the help of someone else doing something for us so that we aren't forced to deal with it ourselves. Friends cheer us up, lighten our load in some small way and help us cope when we are not sure we can. Where then is the line that differentiates enabling and helping? It is, I believe, in responsibility. If we all accept that we are the only ones responsible for our failures, that we all must take control of our own lives in order for improvement to take place, then our perspective is clear. If we accept help from others, and give it in return, we are, no doubt, a friend who has friends.

If we try to control the lives of others, make excuses for their failures and allow the same dependence on us to reoccur repeatedly then we need to re-evaluate our role in that particular relationship. For there is some psychological reason for such an ongoing emotional addiction, and no doubt it can only be healed by professional guidance.

Life can be and should be a joyous experience, full of new opportunities each day. But each of us must accept responsibility for our own life, health and financial well being. Let us steer clear of the enabler-dependent traps, and learn to deal with situations with wit and charm and emotional stability. If we do, it will be a better world for all of us.

Now where did I leave those damn car keys?

See you next week.

We would urge voters to approve the millage renewal, and the request for the 2-mill increase for the next three years. It is well worth $44 more each year to provide our children with the opportunity to attend clean, warm, comfortable schools and to look with pride on some of the small "extras" that account for an increased interest in their educations and their schools. The education of our children is the foundation of our future as a community, a state and a nation.

It is well worth $44 more each year to do it right.

Congressman William Ford addressed the Canton Chamber of Commerce last Wednesday, speaking on current efforts in the halls of Congress to provide tax reform. Ford said the top priority facing lawmakers in 1986 will be to reduce a spiralling budget deficit.

Ford discusses effects of tax reform

By DAVID CONLEY
ANP Staff Writer

Shortly before administration and congressional budget offices projected the largest

"Somebody's got to pay the bills."

— Congressman William Ford

federal deficit in U.S. history, Congressman William Ford spoke to the Canton Chamber of Commerce last Wednesday on recent tax reform efforts in Washington.

The Taylor Democrat spoke on the controversial tax reform bill passed in the U.S. House of Representatives last month, its prospects in the Senate, and the possible consequences for small businesses.

"Nobody in either party has a greater concern than the deficit," Ford said. "Since 1981 the national debt has more than doubled, at a $200 billion rate per year. . . The debt service cost in this year's budget will be about $142 billion—that doesn't pay a penny of principal; just the interest."

"Somebody's got to pay the bills. We can't leave it to the generation after us. We might not have anything to recover," Ford said.

This week, reports from the Office of Management and Budget and the Congressional Budget Office are expected to project a $220 billion federal deficit, $8 billion more than the record debt of last year and $48 billion more than estimates from last summer.

Ford took the opportunity to criticize Republican supply-side policies, which "resulted in about $3 billion in revenue loss" while increasing defense spending $1.5 trillion. "You can't run a business that way and you can't run a country that way," he said. Speaking about the House-passed tax reform bill, which was put through by the combined efforts of Democrats and President Reagan, Ford said, "it takes away some of the special evaluations of big business, but not all."

The House-passed bill, according to Ford, has several points of impact on small business:

- a fully-graduated set of corporate tax rates for companies with taxable income up to $100,000, with slight reductions by 1987 in the higher income brackets. For companies making over $100,000, the tax will be assessed at a flat 36 percent rate, down from the present 46 percent;

- simplified last-in, first-out (LIFO) inventory accounting procedures for companies with average annual gross receipts of up to $5 million. The result, Ford said, is "advantageous when costs are rising, since it results in a higher cost of goods sold, and consequently a lower measure of taxable income."

- The House-passed bill would allow small businesses with average annual gross receipts of $5 million or less over three years to use the cash method of accounting.

Ford indicated that he expects the Republican Senate to increase tax incentives, again reducing revenue, while attempting to meet the economy requirements of the recently-passed Gramm-Rudman bill by reducing domestic spending.

The congressman disagreed with that idea, saying, "I think that Americans will accept the idea of increased tax revenues if you can convince them that taxes will be more fair. Americans inherently will not accept something they see as unfair."

wall street the week ahead

DEAR INVESTOR, IN MY OPINION: The Federal Reserve Board is currently taking a "wait and see" position on market action.

The "supply-demand" rules, at the present time, are inoperative. The Fed's current "do little, or nothing, policy" is their defense against making a major monetary mistake; which could call for severe adjustments.

Currently consumers are spending below anticipated rates, and producers are holding a tight rein on any inventory buildup.

Production managers are aware of the consequence of selling excess inventory at-or-below cost, and consumers seem to have met their current needs and are building cash reserves.

Bonds and interest sensitive issues will be under selling pressure as interests rates firm and move higher. If producers move to increase production (inventory), their short-term credit needs will fuel higher credit yields.

Gold and silver prices will be mixed to higher. The higher prices are a function of increased cash flow for oil producers.

For this week, short-term traders will be optimistic for an early session rally. However, enthusiasm will decline as we move through the session. Intermediate- and long-term traders will use any market strength to close out positions.

"The market cannot decline," the euphoria bubble may not have burst; but it certainly has been presented!

Over the short term, we may be able to judge the damage. A continued rapid decline could cause the market to unravel. At this time, there are a lot of "fence-sitters" looking for an excuse to sell.

The major decline in support is in secondary and little capitalized issues. Usually these stocks hold up better in a negative market. This will be a tough market to play, but by the end of the session, a downward bias may be apparent.

NOTE: The economy grew more slowly last month with new orders, production and employment declining among 250 surveyed companies; auto sales surged in late December, reflecting major new incentive programs; unemployment fell to 6.9 percent which was the lowest since April 1980; Fed restricts the use of "junk bonds."

Where did he go?

When the officials untangled the two prep grapplers involved in a duel during Plymouth Salem's Invitational recently, Wayne Memorial's Jeff Shareef (in light jersey) earned a decisive 12-0 decision over Jeff Krebbs during their 145-pound match. Salem, and a host of area teams including Romulus, will travel to Monroe on Saturday to participate in an 8-team invitational.

Canton gives Niemi 2 big cage victories

By DAVID CONLEY
ANP Staff Writer

The Plymouth-Canton basketball team gave new coach Tom Niemi his first two victories last week, defeating John Glenn 62-59 on Tuesday and following up with a 65-33 romp against Livonia Franklin on Friday.

The pair of victories came in league play, boosting the Chiefs to a respectable 2-3 record in the Western Lakes Activities Association, 2-5 overall.

"The first one is always difficult to get, and it feels a whole lot better once you have it," Niemi said afterward. "It's good to let everyone know that the program is getting results—hopefully, it'll continue."

Team workouts over Christmas made a difference in the game, according to Niemi. Better post play off the bench and clutch foul shooting reversed the Chiefs' early-season problem of losing tight ball games in the last minutes.

Against Glenn, the Chiefs used a tight man-to-man defense to force their bigger opponents into turnovers while parlaying strong play from centers Jeff Lyle (8 points, a game-high 10 rebounds) and Dan Olszewski (8 points) into a 32-29 halftime lead, and a 42-41 lead going into the final quarter.

Glenn, knowing the Chiefs' early-season problem with free-throw shooting, challenged them to win the game from the charity stripe; Canton did just that. In the fourth quarter guard Joel Mies made nine of 10 free throws en route to a game-high 19 points. Backcourt partner Roger Trice made three of four, finishing with 17 points. Steve Hawley led the Rockets with 17 points, while Tim Wisely scored 15 and Andy Grazulis chipped in with 12.

Against Franklin, "we had that taste, that one win, and we were at home," Niemi said, explaining the Friday blowout.

The smaller Chiefs continued their policy of wearing down big teams with full-court pressure, breaking the game open with a 21-10 scoring edge in the second quarter. By the end of the third quarter, the score was 46-27 and the Chiefs were able to get all their reserves into the game.

"We played real good defense, and Olszewski had an excellent game for us," Niemi said. "If we're able to score from the post, our wing players get better shots."

Olszewski took game rebounding honors with eight caroms, while Mies led the Chief scorers with 15. Trice chipped in with 12 points.

On the other side of the Centennial Educational Park, Bob Brodie's Salem team defeated Livonia Churchill on Tuesday, 64-35, before losing in overtime to Farmington on Friday, 67-63.

Brodie's huge front line—with players 6-7, 6-4, and 6-6—had a hard time of it against Churchill, until Rock sharpshooters Brian Kearis and Paul Makara opened up the Churchill zone with outside shots in the second quarter. Salem took a 34-15 lead at halftime and was never headed.

"We were just on," Brodie said. We got good contributions from all ten players."

Kearis and forward Mike Hale tied for scoring honors with 12 points each, while Tony Moore added 10 for the Rocks.

Against Farmington, missed free throws and a looping fall-away shot by Farmington guard Steve Howell spelled defeat for Salem.

The game was a tight match-up between two strong man-to-man defenses. Salem was unable to hold its 29-25 halftime edge, as Farmington made 19 of 27 free throws and the Rocks made only nine of 17.

"Free throws down the stretch hurt us. We missed five front ends of one-and-one opportunities. Then at the end of regulation Steve Howell took a rebound away from one of our players and put in a 10-foot fall-away at the buzzer," Brodie said.

In overtime, "they came out hungrier than we were. They scored on the opening tip and went on to outscore us 8-4. Farmington was just convinced they were going to win the game," Brodie conceded.

Hale led the Rocks with 19 points and 14 rebounds, while 6-6 center Tom D'angelo finished the game with 11 points and 10 rebounds for the Rocks, who finished the week with a 3-1 league record, 5-2 overall.

Heartbreaker

Tigers hit cold streak at Wyandotte

After giving undefeated Wayne Memorial a scare on Tuesday, Belleville and Coach Leon Birdyshaw hit the road to Wyandotte on Friday where they dropped a 53-50 decision to their Wolverine "A" Conference basketball foes.

Scoring a mere five points in the first period, the Tigers appeared to overcome their cold start and came within a basket of making up the difference at halftime (23-21). However, a second cold spell, this one coming early in the third period, proved to be fatal for the Tiger cause.

"We just couldn't buy a basket in that first period," said Birdyshaw whose team record dipped to 1-3 in the conference and 3-4 over-all. "We appeared to snap out of it at the end, but just could muster enough scoring power to get the job done."

One major obstacle at Wyandotte for Belleville came in the form of 6-4 Norm Erickson who made good on four of his field goals and 10 of 15 from the free throw line for an individual game scoring high of 18.

Belleville's Chris Grantham and Ladion Tait continued to provide the over-all balance to keep the Tigers in all of their games thus far this season. Tait, who has been the key to the Belleville board game, also has delivered double figures in the scoring columns regularly. He sank a team high 17 and nabbed 12 rebounds against the Bruins. In the meantime Grantham has contributed 14 points.

Again, the free throw line has been a decisive factor in the Tigers' inability to stop league rivals. Belleville canned eight of 16 at Wyandotte and was but only one of six against the defending champ, Wayne.

Wayne, undefeated and coming off a victory over Detroit Catholic Central in the Howell Holiday Tournament, managed to pull out a narrow 67-63 victory over Belleville earlier in the week.

Up by three (15-12) at the end of the initial period, Coach Chuck Henry and the Zebras widened the gap by 14 early in the second period before walking off the floor at the intermission with a 32-24 lead.

Belleville, spurred by the balanced scoring of Grantham, Tait, Willis and Currie, kept the game close with a 16-14 and 23-21 edge in the final two periods. Tait finished the evening with 18 while Grantham added 11 and Currie and Willis split 20 points between them.

Wayne got a superb scoring effort from Mark Robinson who tossed in a game high 24 while Rodney Sommons came through with 15 and Gary Hakerson also was in double figures with 11.

Fordson invades Belleville

Friday night and the Tigers are hoping to pull out of its tailspin at Coach John McIntyre and the Tractors' expense.

"They are an excellent team," warned Birdyshaw, "however, I don't think that John has the powerhouse that he has had in the past. It should be quite a match up between our two teams."

Johnson's Bakery got on the scoreboard thanks by goals scored by Corky Hays and Roger Wodgenske. Al Pulk, Errol Pulk and Ron Clemans picked up the assists.

Nelson Vanderburgh of Lindsey-Pavelich logged his first hat trick with two assists as his team skated to a 7-5 win over Johnson's Carbonic.

Dave Frankling followed close as he rattled the net twice and picked up three assists. Ed Spontack found the crease once and received one assist while John Clearwood accounted for the remaining goal. Bruce Renton and Jeff Carter finished the evening with two assists while Rich Gardner and Dave Milam earned an assist.

Jim Creekmore scored twice for Johnson's Carbonic; Jerry Robertson carded one goal and two assists; Ken Beal found the crease for one goal and one assist. Ernest Hunter accounted for the remaining goal. Jack Bockstanz finished with two assists while John Jackovich, Ralph Tack and goalie Gary Green received one assist.

Dennis LaPensee tallied twice; Conrad Madaleno came up with one goal and picked up an assist. Mike Clelland, goalie Terry Taylor, Jim McMaster and Phil Cerne received one assist.

Mark Tominak put Jake's on the scoreboard with one goal and one assist. Al Farina and Terry Lindsey accounted for the rest of Jake's scoring. Jim O'Gozaly and Jake Davidson received an assist apiece.
